

SWRMC Sailors volunteer to help local families

Southwest Regional Maintenance Center (SWRMC) Sailors volunteered their time with Feed the Children, Alliance One, and the Armed Services Young Men's Christina Association (ASYMCA) to distribute two semi tractors full of food at Montgomery Middle School in San Diego on Mar. 12 in an effort to help families in the local community.

The volunteers unpacked boxes from the trucks, organized the inventory, and distributed the food to families in attendance.

"This was a wonderful opportunity for SWRMC CPO 365 to help the community and for our Sailors to spend some time outside of work with fellow First Classes and senior enlisted leadership," said Petty Officer First Class Anna Buell, CPO 365 volunteer project coordinator.

Each family that attended the event received one 25-pound box of food and one 10-pound box of personal care items, which is expected to help a family of four for at least one week.

"Working with and helping military families is central to our focus on providing help and hope to children and their families. As we strive to provide life's essentials to families, the men and women of the military strive each day to protect our life, liberty and freedoms," said Erin Engelke, spokesperson for Feed The Children. "We are so thankful to the ASYMCA for helping these families and further our mission to ensure no child of family goes to bed hungry."
